In Loving Remembrance of Rosa McGarley.

Rosa E., only daughter of W. L. and M. L. McGarley, in the 14th year of her age died at the home of her parents in Kingsville, June 24th, 1891, of typhoid pneumonia, after an illness of two weeks. She was taken sick during a common cold, and died at the home of her parents, Kingsville, where she was attending school. Rosa had been a member of the Christian church nearly four years, and was a loving, faithful follower of the gentle Jesus, who blessed the children when they came unto Him in their heart-breaking sorrow. It is a sweet comfort to her loving parents to know that she is "Safe in the Arms of Jesus," whom she loved so truly and so well.

She had a bright intelligent mind and an affectionate disposition which endeared her to all who knew her. She was accomplished in music, art, etc., was always a favorite among her teachers and schoolmates, and few angels have wended their way on high leaving so many grief-stricken friends, and casting a gloom over the hearts of all who knew her beautiful, short life. She was her father's and mother's earthly idol.

God sent this sweet Rose to blossom and beautify this earth for a few short years, and now, He has taken her to bloom forever in the far garden of heaven. Rosa loved her dear father and mother and only brother with an unusual devotion, and they grieve for her with hearts broken with sorrow.

Oh weep not for her whose soul fell in the arms of Jesus before the chilling wintry breath of sorrow o'er her bliss. She sleeps but will awake, for death only opens the door to a purer, brighter, nobler life. To Rosa in her early sleep we sing:

"Death should come gently to one mild like thee,
As light winds wandering through groves of bloom,
Detach the delicate blossoms from the tree,
Close thy sweet eyes calmly and with out pain,
And we will trust in God to see thee yet again."

We may not sorrow, even as others who have no hope, for if we believe that Jesus died and rose again, even so, then also which sleep in Jesus will God bring with Him.

HER LOVING FRIEND.

The Cicero of the Mountains vs. the Little Red Hog.

(To the Editor of Interior Journal.)

CHAR OCHARD, July 22.—It is rumored here that Hon. R. L. Ewell will speak at Crab Orchard Saturday, July 25th, and if so, that I am to answer him, which I am very glad to do having recently decapitated him at Williamsburg in a murder case. Insert this notice so that the opponents of the new constitution may be present at the grand tournament. He is not one of the invited knights, but in the absence of nobler game I shall not hesitate to give him a tilt when he dares thus to enter my home ring. FORTAINE F. BOWITT.

GREEN BRIAR SPRINGS.

—On Saturday night, July 25th, we will give a "special ball" and will dance until 12 o'clock. Everybody invited. Ladies free and gentlemen only 25 cents. Respectfully, D. G. SLAUGHTER.

P. S.—In regard to the Dripping Springs matter I simply reiterate every word of my former letter. I never make a statement I am not able to prove, and more if necessary, and I never do any one "an injustice." Respt., D. G. S.

Logans Creek and Dix River.

—R. W. Gaines delivered to B. F. Robinson, of Garrard, 311 nice fat lambs at $4. Mr. Robinson says they are the best he's handled this season. Mr. Wm. T. Weakley, of Shelbyville, was with us last and first of this week, having attended the fair and being at Crab Orchard for a day or so. A majority of our fellow citizens are against the new constitution since they heard that genial, able-bodied Logan county monster, Rhea, speak a week or so ago at your town. Col. J. M. Beazley says that it looks too much like living a widower to not see his wife for about six months, so leaves this week to join her at Middlesboro, and to see how the hotel business is progressing. The L. & N., better known as K. C., was certainly on a boom Monday and Tuesday as there were over 10 trains over it. This does pretty well for the L. & N. Cutting meadows is now in full blast, but reported very thin, about 1/2 the yield of last year. Mr. Wm. Enbanks, Misses Louanna Dunder and Lizzie Porter are on the sick list. Ed. C. Gaines will attend the Richmond Fair Friday. Prof. Thompson has opened a five months school at Goshen Institute, while Mrs. Betty Enbanks has opened one at the New Cave Hill Academy. Wednesday as James Beazley, Jr., was driving a two horse wagon up Logan's creek his horses began to balk and back, until they went over an embankment some 10 feet high. Mr. Beazley was on the wagon, but strange to say nothing was hurt, only the horses scared up pretty severely.

The advocates of the new constitution say that its adoption will quiet land titles in the mountains, but Col. Hager, a member of the railroad commission, who has studied the clause, gives his opinion, that if adopted, for at least 30 years to come, those who are now residing on, paying taxes for, and believing themselves the owners of land covered by old Virginia grants (and nearly all of the mountain section of Kentucky is unfortunately thus afflicted), will at any time during such period, be liable to suits in the Federal courts, with great danger of losing possession of all real property not actually inclosed with a continuous residence within each inclosure for a term of fifteen years.

—The telegraph office has been opened at Pine Hill, with Mr. E. L. Rochester, of Stanford, as operator.

—Our public school will begin next Monday, the 27th, with Miss Ella Joplin teacher and Mr. William Cocks assistant.

—We have a platform at the depot now that is broad enough for all political parties to stand upon without crowding each other.

—Messrs. E. B. Smith, of the Signal, and G. W. McCune went up to London Wednesday to hear John Young Brown and attend to "other" business.

—Mrs. Elizabeth Farris, charged with having beaten Mrs. Patsy Todd from which the latter died, had an examining trial Friday and was released on a bond of $200.

—The strike which caused the cessation of operations at the ballast quarry some four weeks since has been settled by the strikers agreeing to resume work at the usual wages. Mr. Cook, the manager, is now in Hopkinsville for the purpose of hiring a hundred more men to put to work.

—The carpenters have changed the looks of things around the depot here. The building has been set further back from the track and lowered; the old high platforms torn away and wider low ones substituted in front of the depot and a "cinder" extension made on the east end and westward along the track. All ditches have been cleaned out, the yard leveled, and everything is bright as a new pin, or a paper full for that matter.

—Mr. R. G. Williams is in from Williamsburg and will remain until school opens at Centre College. Capt. Frank Harris passed down on Wednesday morning's freight to catch the pay train at Sinks. Our place now boasts of a first-class barber shop. The finest blackberries seen for years are being brought in daily. Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Weber are visiting Danville. Mr. W. F. McClary, your efficient and energetic school superintendent, was here a few days since to see his kinsman, Mr. J. K. McClary.

—Up to this time the democrats of Rockcastle have taken no action relative to the nomination of a candidate to represent Laurel and this county in the next legislature, but will likely decide within a few days what line of action will be pursued. Their is a straight republican candidate and an independent republican on the track. The latter, G. W. Fagan, of Pine Hill, has been endorsed by the K. of L. and farmers' alliance and has a very strong republican following, and his friends claim that he will win. Whether there is to be a regular Kilkenny cat fight or not will probably be revealed within a very few days.

—Mr. L. T. Smith, of your county, is drilling the public well in White's addition to Mt. Vernon. Mr. M. C. Miller started on his return to Texas today. Adams and family will move to Garrard county this week. Mr. Monroe Frazer, of Louisville, was here Saturday. Mr. D. R. Carpenter, of your place, after a two-week's stay with us, left a few days since for Dillon on Rockcastle river. We found him a very pleasant gentleman indeed. Mr. M. C. Miller, operator at Sinks, is with us for a ten-days' visit.

John Speaker, Catawba, Ohio, had severe fever sores on his leg, doctors said he was incurable. One bottle Electric Bitters and one box Bucklen's Arnica Salve cured him entirely. Sold at A. R. Penny's drug store.

STANFORD, KY., - JULY 24, 1891

Almost Mixed Schools.

If the people of Kentucky ratify the proposed constitution, there will be danger that our common schools in towns and cities having a population less than 20,000 will be involved in trouble. By virtue of Sec. 167, which every one should read, the school boards of towns and cities shall be elected by the qualified voters. In cities of the third class, however, having a population of 20,000 or over, they may be appointed or elected as provided by a general law.

Now, we all know what are meant by "qualified voters." Colored people as well as white people are covered by this phrase. So it results that in all the towns and smaller cities, white people as well as colored people vote for and elect the boards of trustees for the common schools which may be taught in them. This is not desired by either race. Each race prefers to have its own separate schools, its own set of officers, its own teachers, its own pupils. Each race prefers that it shall have exclusive control in the selection of its school boards. White people have no business interfering with the colored people in these matters, and the colored people have no business interfering with the white. The conservative, thoughtful men of each race well understand the danger which will ensue if one race begins to interfere with the school affairs of the other. The colored people of Stanford have their common school within the corporate limits of the town. Heretofore they have had, and they yet enjoy, the privilege of electing their own school officers independent of the agency, participation or control of their white friends. But when this proposed constitution shall be adopted, if ever, this privilege is taken away from them. Some white man, disposed to make trouble, will at the first election interfere and undertake to thrust on them a set of officers who are not to their liking. In retaliation for this interference, when the election for trustees of white schools comes off, the colored men will march up to the polls and obtain their revenge. Bad blood is engendered, confusion, litigation, strife ensue and the school system suffers.

The success of our common schools depends upon keeping them outside the range of all political and sectarian influences.

By Section 171 of the proposed constitution every privilege granted by a county must be put up at public auction, and, after due advertisement, sold to the highest and best bidder. If a county has a right to grant a privilege, it is done through its county court or its county clerk. We have the following privileges granted by the county court: The privilege to sell spirituous, vinous and malt liquors; the privilege to a merchant to sell liquors in quantity not less than a quart; the privilege to operate a ferry and perhaps others. The county clerk has a right to grant a privilege to keep a dry tavern; the privilege to sell pistols or bowie knives; the privilege to keep a ten pin alley or bowling saloon; the privilege to carry on the business of pawnbroker; the privilege to exhibit a circus, show or menagerie; the privilege to stand a stud, jack or bull, and perhaps others.

Under the proposed constitution, if adopted, each of these privileges and others which the people have been in the habit of procuring from their county officials, must be sold to the highest bidder, so the man who has the most money can keep all the taverns, sell all the whiskey, run all the ten pin alleys, and stand all the jacks, bulls and studs in the county.

SENATOR BLACKBURN may not be much of a stump speaker, but as a lawyer he takes the cake. He says in his great speech: "I am ready to go into a court and swear that, with a few exceptions, this constitution embodies everything we have demanded." It will please the bench and bar of Kentucky to learn that the question of whether a constitution contains the reforms the people want, is one of which the courts may have jurisdiction. And above all it will please the bench and bar to know that constitutional questions are questions of fact about which the senator may testify.

COL. J. STODDARD JOHNSTON, who is ably managing the campaign against the new constitution, predicts the defeat of that code of experimental statutes. He has not seen his way clear until this to make the prediction, but he does so now with absolute confidence. The colonel is not given to largess and what he says may be taken with the utmost confidence that he is assured of his premises.

SENATOR JO is progressing in his knowledge of striking phrases. The senator has at last mastered the "ides of August." We may now indulge the cheerful hope that before the ides of November he will have learned to say "God Almighty's green earth."

The Middlesboro Daily Herald has suspended after a precarious existence of three months. Everything at the magic city seems to be on the decline.

The proposed constitution makes a great pretense of restricting the powers of railroads. It makes it unlawful for them to allow any difference in their rate of charges for long hauls and short hauls. But after this flourish of trumpets, by a proviso clause, it gives power to a railroad commission—a tribunal which is to be appointed by the governor and not elected by the people—to authorize any railway company to charge less for longer than for shorter distances. And beside this commission may prescribe the extent to which the railroads may be relieved from the operation of the entire section restricting the power of these corporations. In other words, the power of restriction is taken from the legislature, the direct representative of the people, and confided on a commission composed of three persons in whose selection the people had no voice. Railroads, says President Clay and his followers, are stamping the life out of the people; but we must not let the people remedy the wrong. This must be done by three, wise, honest, capable men, who are not responsible to the people and who were not chosen by the people!

The 30th anniversary of the Battle of Bull Run was observed by the unveiling of a bronze statue at Lexington, Va., of the hero of the day, one of the greatest, if not the greatest generals that the civil war produced, Stonewall Jackson. The statue is 9 feet high and represents him, Jackson in full uniform, his coat buttoned tightly and his sword unsheathed. The chaplain of his staff, Rev. A. C. Hopkins, of Charleston, W. Va., invoked the divine blessing and Gen. Wade Hampton presided over the services on the campus of Washington & Lee University. Fully 3,000 Confederates and 1,000 Federal soldiers were present, including many distinguished officers of both sides. Gen. James A. Walker, the only surviving commander of the Stonewall brigade, was chief-marshal and he was followed by the survivors of that famous command. The body had lain in a grave in the city cemetery since its interment in 1862, with only a small marble slab to mark it till last month, when it was removed to its future resting place.

SENATOR BLACKBURN advocates the proposed constitution, but says: "There are a great many things there that I would eliminate if I could. I believe you could make them better. I do not believe that of the 100 men who made the constitution there is one, who, if he had the power, would not eliminate something from it." With Senator Blackburn's great many objectionable things, with the things objectionable to each one of the delegates, and the things objectionable to everybody else, how long will it take at the rate of two amendments every two years, to weed out the patch?

The negro Pulliam, who was lynched for rape on a respectable white lady down in Shelby county, Monday night, was an accommodating kind of a cuss. He gave his executioners as little trouble as possible. In fact he assisted all he could by climbing up on a fence so that the rope could be tied to a limb the easier. The first time he was shoved off the rope slipped off the limb, when he quietly climbed again to the fence for the second attempt, which was more successful as he was slowly choked to death. The mob was not disgraced at all and made no effort to conceal its identity.

The Clark county alliance resolved against the formation of a third party, and condemned the action of the Cincinnati convention which brought forth the people's party. They also resolved heartily in favor of the Jeffersonian doctrine of the greatest good to the greatest number and of the equality of all men before the law. This they can get only by sticking to the democratic party, which they have very wisely decided to do. Let all alliance men who want to accomplish their objects follow suit.

DELEGATE STRAUS, of Bullitt, who wouldn't know a statesman if he were to meet one in the big road, is harking at the heels of Gov. Buckner, who, though a member of the constitutional convention, does not propose to be bullied into the support of its work, which he can not endorse. Delegate Straus says Gov. Buckner is not a statesman. If some one were to say that Delegate Straus was neither a fool nor a liar he would be further from the truth than the Bullitt bloviator.

MERCER county should give certain of her alliance men such a dose of justice as will entirely cure them of their unlawful inclinations. Some of them attempted to break up a meeting in which the democratic candidate for the legislature, Mr. W. W. Stephenson, was speaking, and when a magistrate endeavored to enforce order he was set upon and beaten. We have never heard of any thing in the alleged lawless mountains quite so outrageous as this.

FULLY 70 papers in the State are making war on the new constitution, including such staunch journals as the Owensboro Messenger, Covington Commonwealth, Frankfort Capital and Hopkinsville Kentuckian. These papers have large constituencies who know they are honest in their advocacy of the rejection of this instrument and their arguments carry great weight.

Litigation Galore!

One of the most serious objections urged against the adoption of the proposed constitution is the unnecessary increased amount of litigation which will ensue in its construction by the courts. To impress the weight of this objection it is only necessary to glance at the Kentucky Reports, where it can safely be said at least 1,000 cases can be found construing the organic law, the greater portion of which, if the instrument is adopted, will no longer be of any validity.

Framing a constitution is decidedly the smaller part of the work of making one, for every section, every sentence, must be defined by the court of last resort, and there is no reason or demand whatever for abolishing 90-100 of the judicial work which the new instrument strikes at. Complete changes in organic law, such as this is, are against the policy of the several States and of the United States. A good constitution, like every other good thing, is a matter of gradual growth. The statuary who spends years in producing his famous models does not, when a defect is discovered, destroy all that is perfect as well as defective, but directs his attention to the correction of errors and lets the good go untouched. So it should be with the framers of constitutions, and so it has been with the statesmen of the past who have had sufficient enlightenment to deal with this problem.

The constitution of the United States, the grandest stride yet taken in the science of government, was ratified in the year 1787. The government of the Federal Union is certainly as complex a problem as that of the State of Kentucky, yet the only changes so far made in its constitution consist of fifteen short amendments, covering about four pages, the first ten of which were adopted so early as the year 1791. The constitution makers of Kentucky have hitherto followed precedent, and its history shows forcibly that the Jacobs-Itt Haven-Knott, &c., minority was the only portion of the late lamented body competent to perform the duty assigned them, but unfortunately it was overshadowed by the majority of cranks, base ball presidents, &c., whose only knowledge of the science of government so far shown is the ability to slander gentlemen so far above them they can not stoop to notice the vipers blowing at their heels.

The framers of the present constitution, who met in 1849, conceded on all sides to be men of ability as well as statesmen, set an example to their successors, which, if followed, would have been a blessing to the people of Kentucky. They had as beacon lights the first and second (then in force) constitutions of the State. Then as now there was a demand for a revision. Then as now the delegates performed the duty for which they were elected. The constitution was simply revised, as we propose to show by comparison, which was the proper course.

The second constitution was adopted in 1791 and was in force 59 years, being supplanted by the present in 1850. Have the social, commercial, and political changes between 1850 and the present time been sufficiently greater than those between 1791 and 1850 to require a virtual revolution? We think not.

Now for the comparison between the constitution now in force and its predecessor: The preambles of the two instruments are exactly the same. It did not require days of valuable time for the delegates to concede their inferiority to the "Great I Am." The articles are arranged in the same order and have the same headings. Article 1, "Concerning the Distribution of the Powers of Government," is the same in both instruments. Article 2, "Concerning the Legislative Department," has 30 sections in the second constitution. In the one now in force, there are 40, the only difference being that some special legislation is prevented and referred to the courts, and the legislature prevented from diminishing resources of sinking fund before payment of State debt, &c. Compare these changes with those in the proposed instrument. Article 3, "Concerning the Executive Department," is substantially the same in both instruments. Under the old, sheriffs, justices, &c., were appointed. Under the present they are elected. Under Article 4, "Concerning the Judicial Department," an appointive was supplanted by an elective judiciary, which of course necessitated a considerable change in the two articles. Article 5, "Concerning Impeachments," is the same. Article 6, of the present instrument, "Concerning Executive and Ministerial Offices for Counties and Districts," is not in the old, its adoption being necessary by reason of the creation of the elective system. Article 7, "Concerning the Militia," is not in the old constitution. Article 8, of the present instrument, "General Provisions," corresponds with Article 6 of the old, and the two are substantially the same, the only changes being such as were necessitated by the adoption of the elective system. The articles "Concerning the Seat of Government," are the same. The only change in the article "Concerning Slaves" is that under the present instrument freed slaves were not allowed to remain in the State. Article 11, "Concerning Education," is not in the old constitution. The famous article on "Mode of Revising the Constitution" is substantially the same. The "Bill of Rights," with exception of two additional sections in the present constitution, is exactly the same. The "Schedule" in both is substantially the same. The comparison shows that the changes are of form and not of substance, so that decisions constraining the old, apply with equal force to the present constitution, which, being simply a revision of the old, has virtually been in force an even century. It could be well for voters before voting for the proposed experiment simply because it cost $250,000, to remember the lawyer fees they must pay in having it construed for years to come.

TENNESSEE'S former governor, Buchanan, has gotten himself in a fix. Without waiting for the legal demand for troops, which must come from the sheriff, he sent 107 of his drude militia to Knoxville to guard the convicts and prevent the miners from running things. But the miners ran things all the same, for they not only captured the soldiers, who surrendered without resistance, but boxed them in freight cars and shipped them with the convicts to Knoxville. The governor then ordered out the entire State militia, but being legally advised that he must await the demands of the sheriff, he could do nothing, as the sheriff had snatched the battle from afar and skipped. The miners resolved to do no further violence and appointed a committee to wait on the governor and try to arbitrate matters, though they are determined to resist to the death any attempt to have the convicts returned to the mines.

The governor met the committee and proposed that he would call a special session of the legislature to modify or abolish the convict lease system, the convicts in the meantime to work in the mines unmolested. At last accounts the miners had not agreed to these terms, though it is thought they will. The governor has shown himself to be a poor executor of the laws. It matters not that they may be bad. He is sworn to execute them and resist to the fall power of the State any such outlawry as has been attempted at Briceville. As a contemporary very tersely says the way to have a bad law repealed is by the ballot box and not by the cartridge box, and all classes of citizens should be taught this wholesome lesson.

There came near being a collision between Gov. Cantrell and C. J. Bronson at Georgetown, Monday, when the latter made an unnecessary and unjust allusion to the governor, who was in the audience. "You dare to impeach my motives!" said Cantrell with a raised stick, when the red-headed statesman, recognizing his mistake, apologized.

The Louisville Times has been awarded the city printing for the fifth year, having shown to the satisfaction of the court that its circulation is greater than any other paper in the city—about 15,000 daily. The Times is a great paper and ought not to have to pay second fiddle to the Courier-Journal.

The speech of Senator Blackburn in favor of the proposed crazy quilt, is sent out to the people as campaign matter. It will please the senator's constituency to observe that the senator has learned a new phrase—"the ides of August." There is hope for Senator Jo yet.

The versatility of the American journalist is unequalled elsewhere on the globe. A gifted young newspaper man writing of the chicken house of a Vanderbilt calls it a "hen palace."

A newspaper correspondent writes from New Orleans that in the present political campaign Louisiana knows no north, no south, no Democrat or Republican, not even any People's party or Farmers' Alliance. She knows only lottery and anti-lottery.

Patent medicine labels can no longer be copyrighted. "Only such writings and discoveries as are the result of intellectual labor can be registered and copyrighted," says the United States supreme court. Therefore anybody can use anybody's else label for liver pills.

The announcement comes from London that an electrical machine has been invented which will not only grind meat and stuff a sausage, but will also turn it out cooked and smoking hot to the consumer. Great heavens! The winged bolt of Jove has been harnessed and made to run a sausage machine. It is a degenerate age.

When we find out what it is, there is use for everything. It has been discovered that the waste sand which falls off and accumulates in heaps from the grinding of plate glass can be made into brick of so good a quality that brick-makers could even wish there were more plate glass ground and show windows broken, just so they could get more waste sand.

An electric hand lamp for miners and those engaged in labor in dark places has been invented. It is no larger than an ordinary hand lamp and contains a miniature storage battery. This will maintain an illuminating current two or three hours, when the materials must be recharged. This, however, is so recharged as to be done easily and inexpensively. When not in use the lamp can be disconnected from the battery so as not to waste materials. It is an absolute safety lamp for miners.

Man dogs are beginning to get in their work. Will our honorable mayor follow the foolish precedent of locking the stable after the horse is stolen, and wait till somebody is bitten before he orders the enforcement of the ordinance that all dogs appearing on the streets shall be muzzled or suffer the death penalty?

It has always been a wonder to me what a man wants to keep a miserable little fyst for or other worthless dogs, especially in town, except to worry his neighbors with their sleep-destroying bark. Fortunately our town laws provide against such an infliction by fixing a penalty of not exceeding $10 fine against a person whose dog by loud and continuous barking disturbs his neighbors.

MARSHAL NEWLAND arrested on a writ issued by Judge Barnett Ed Buster and wife, Kate Hiatt and Mollie Brooks, all negroes except the latter, who is a very low white woman, charging them with disorderly conduct in Rowland. They were tried before the judge Wednesday, when it was proved that they were fighting, cursing and blackguarding. Buster was fined $25 and costs, his wife $10, the Brooks woman $10, and the other one discharged. Mrs. Buster appealed, but her husband and Brooks went to jail.

AFTER a several-days trial Judge Varney yesterday refused license to James Gibbons to sell spirituous and vinous liquors at McKinney. Mr. R. C. Warren represented the protestants, who included a considerable majority of the leading citizens, and Judge M. C. Sandley, the applicant. Under the circumstances the refusal of the license seems to have been proper. The citizens do not want a bar-room there and being without police protection they argue that their village would be turned over to the mercies of any lawless gang who chose to fill up with whisky, if it were permitted to be sold there.

A FRAUD.—Wednesday afternoon, a hale and hearty looking individual asked alms of various persons here, claiming that he had a sore hand which prevented him from working for a living. Our generous hearted citizens responded liberally and a goodly sum was made up for him. An hour or so later the scoundrel was seen "rip-roaringly" drunk and loudly asserting that he could whip any body in town. This lasted for a few minutes till the sound reached Marshal Newland's ears, when he took him in tow and soon had him in durance vile. Yesterday morning at his trial he begged piteously to be released, promising that he would never again show his face here. Judge Carson granted the request and the last seen of the professional beggar he was striking a lively pace for another town to get in his work.

A SNAKE STORY.—John R. Farris tells us that he killed 33 snakes Wednesday. He came across a cow snake about three feet long, which he dispatched with a rock, when 32 little fellows about seven inches each in length ran out of her mouth, and these he also killed. This is rather hard to swallow, but Mr. Farris says he has proof of the best kind, that he is giving us straight goods.

MATRIMONIAL MATTERS.

—Judge A. L. Haggard, 71, and the Widow Haggard, same age, were married at Winchester Tuesday. The bride's maiden name was Hunt and all three of her husbands were named Haggard.

—Brother H. C. Morrison strikes a keynote when he says in the Kentucky Methodist: "Just at this time our country needs a religion that will make a man pay his debts. Shouting don't settle old accounts with trial or man."

—Rev. J. D. A. Vaughn, of Richmond, who has been preaching at the Methodist church for several days, will be compelled to return home today, to the regret of all who have heard him preach. Rev. J. D. A. Vaughn, however, this afternoon and conduct the meeting over Sunday.
